BEYOND BORDERS

DR. ELIZABETH GREIG CROSSES
INTO THE UNKNOWN

Embracing challenges at the edge of the map, where the conditions are anything but predictable, calls for an unswerving seeker with boundless faith in human potential. For disaster relief physician Dr. Elizabeth Greig and her Defender vehicle, it's all in a day's work.

Elizabeth's passion for altruism brought her to the field of disaster medicine. "In a disaster, the most important part of my job is showing up. I have to get to where I'm needed, and often that involves a tough drive." From hospital evacuations, through downed trees and power lines, across flooded streets and into mudflows and landslides, Elizabeth drives the Defender vehicle through impacted areas in Haiti and the Caribbean, and at home in Miami.

A pragmatist to the core, Elizabeth understands that a vehicle must meet a certain utilitarian standard in order to do what she requires of it. That's what she loves about her Defender vehicle. "It just gets the job done."

Taking a step past the conventional to embrace uncertainty takes compassion. Heart. A belief that humans are not defined by their lowest ebbs. In her Defender vehicle, Elizabeth delivers hope.

The task of making a positive, lasting impact on the world can seem larger than life itself. But Elizabeth doesn't concern herself with the theoretical. She cares about the situation on the ground.

Charging forward, continually redefining possibility, Elizabeth remains collected because she has to. The next endeavor is just around the river bend. "Heroes, to me, are those that are somewhat relentless to the cause, knowing that the grind is often the hardest part."

"IT BECOMES IMPOSSIBLE TO NOT STOP
AND THINK ABOUT HOW LUCKY I AM TO HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO GIVE BACK."
